

CI Society – Talecris Fellow Training Program in Immunodeficiency

The CI Society-Talecris Fellow Training Program provides financial aid to trainees in Canadian fellowship programs who wish to expand their education in immunodeficiency disorders. The intent of the program is to support immunology trainees who plan to practice in Canada upon completion of their studies. In order to be eligible for this fellowship, trainees must be traveling at distances greater than a 100km radius from the host institution.

Specific arrangements must be made with the home and host institution Training Program Directors before applying. Only after full agreement of the rotation by all parties can a fellow apply to the CI Society-Talecris Fellow Training Program.

Financial support for lodging and transportation is available. This will be calculated on a weekly basis with a maximum of 4 weeks per fellow (per fellowship). Expenses will be reimbursed once proof has been provided. Applicants must be enrolled in a Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons training stream.
